The client

With over 40 years' experience, Notts Sport has built a world-class reputation for designing and supplying synthetic surfacing systems for sport, play and leisure.

The company pioneers unique products within its industry, resulting in a large amount of R&D utilising different materials and concepts.

The challenge

By submitting its own claims and writing technical reports internally, Notts Sport had not been capturing the full range of qualifying activities and costs.

The company had also been making Patent Box claims through another provider. Having subsequently learned randd offered Patent Box support, it decided to centralise both services with one specialist adviser.

Our approach

A strong focus on helping Notts Sport understand the different elements of an R&D tax claim and identifying qualifying activities and costs previously overlooked.

By developing the company's understanding of what could be included and the evidence required, we helped establish a more effective year-round approach to record-keeping. Relevant information could be captured as projects progressed, making the claims process much easier.

The result

- ✓ Over £450,000 tax relief to support continued investment in R&D
- ✓ Expanded product range of sustainable surfaces for sports and leisure facilities
- ✓ Ability to increase innovation investment each year and patent new products

"The service we have got from randd has always been excellent – randd have been super-helpful."
